CONSTRUCTION TRAIN WRECKED AT OPEN SWITCH

Two Men Received Probably Fatal Injuries and Lives of Fifty Others Were Imperiled.

THE INJURED.
John Hoffman, Springfield, O., 21; spine injured and body bruised.
William B. Kauffman, Little Rock, 18; cut in head and fractured skull.

Two men were probably fatally injured and 50 other had a very narrow escape at Spring Park, 10 miles from St. Louis, on the Frisco Railroad, at noon Monday in a rear-end freight collision, resulting from carelessness in leaving a switch open.

The local freight on the Frisco had pulled into a side track at Spring Park to let a passenger train carrying the workmen of the Frisco-Baumkamp company to dinner at their camp.

Engines George Richardson and Conductor Blackford of the construction train knew they had the right of way and were running at a high speed and dashed into the switch, which should have been closed.

Of the 50 men on the flat car next to the engine of the construction train seven were injured. Two who were seriously hurt were brought to safety by Supt. George Dahl, of the construction company, and taken to the City Dispensary, and after having their wounds dressed were sent to the City Hospital.

They were John Hoffmann of Springfield, O., and William B. Kauffman of Little Rock.

Supt. Dahl had no information as to whose neglect resulted in the switch being left open.

At the dispensary it was stated that Hoffman was suffering from a broken arm, the left, and severe cuts on the nose and chin.

Kauffman had cuts about the shoulder, back and chin. The attending physician said the injuries were serious and might result fatally.

The men sustaining slight injuries were given medical attention at Spring Park.

FICKLE WEATHER LOOKED FOR Higher Temperature Is Promised for Monday Night, but It Will Be Threading Tuesday.

The weather bureau is taking head of the reputation of March as a bringer of most any kind of weather on short notice and generally unsettled weather at all times.

Chief Clerk Hermann's forecast is partly cloudy with a temperature Monday night and threatening Tuesday.

Higher temperature is the rule over the country and the average is very close to freezing. The lowest temperature was reported from Amarillo, Tex., where the mercury stood at 4 above zero. Amarillo is the "panhandle" of the Lone Star state and is high and dry.

The barometer is high in the extreme east and low in South Dakota. The warm weather is coming from the northwest.

There has been a slight precipitation over the country and light snow was falling in the Ozarks Monday morning, but that was merely local.

PRESIDENT ISSUES CALL FOR AN EXTRA SESSION OF THE SENATE

Inevitable Failure of the Panama Canal Treaty Through Senator Morgan's Filibuster Tactics Has Caused Executive to Order Extraordinary Convention March 5.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The President today issued the following proclamation: "By the President of the United States of America:

"A PROCLAMATION: Whereas, Public interest requires that the Senate should convene in extraordinary session, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the Senate of the United States to convene at the capital at the City of Washington on the fifth day of March next at 12 o'clock noon, of which all persons who shall at that time be entitled to act as members of that body, shall be required to be present."

"Given under my hand and the seal of the United States at Washington the second day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and three and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-seventh.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"By the President.

"JOHN HAY, Secretary of State."

The failure of the present Senate to pass the Panama canal and Cuban reciprocity treaties through Morgan's filibuster methods has raised the necessity for the extraordinary session.

Congress began today the last three days of a session marked by great expenditures and by delay of action on the most important projects before it.

Final action remains to be taken on the naval, postoffice, agricultural, sundry civil, general deficiency and fortifications appropriation bills. Two urgent deficiency bills are to be passed before the session ends.

Senate, from these the measure of most vital concern to business interests which has any possible chance of passage is a bill to make the line of the canal a measure. Initial action by both houses will still be necessary on this, to say nothing of the time required to get the bill through the Senate.

Senate, before calling the special session of the Senate whether the Panama route can be secured by ratification of the existing treaty, the option is permitted to lapse and the property cannot be obtained, no further effort will be made to effect ratification.

With the final treaty still pending, the purpose of the special session would be to act on the Cuban reciprocity treaty. The Senate, however, has indicated that it will not be necessary to have a special session for Monday, March 5, issuing the call March 5.

plain-clothes men, in such positions that the four men could not possibly leave the house undetected.

After the officers had been waiting only a few minutes, Collins and the Laptant brothers left the house and started to enter a back standing on the curb. Detective Butler, accompanied by Captain Collins, one of the Laptant brothers, when tried hard to get away, but the plain clothes men, due to Butler's assistance and he held on to his men and securely handcuffed them.

In the meantime, Detective Butler and Farrel had entered the Howard house. Inmates tried to block their way and the landlady called out, "Here's two men looking for you." She looked toward the front room and the officers pushed their way into it.

Rudolph Made a Hard Fight.

Dougherty raised his pistol and as he did so Bill Rudolph held up his overcoat in front of him as if for protection. Dougherty and Farrel rushed in, clutching with Rudolph. A terrible struggle ensued; furniture was broken and a stove overturned.

Rudolph managed to pin Dougherty down and attempted to reach his gun, but Farrel pinned him firmly.

Rudolph had a death grip on his man when Rudolph yelled for help, declaring that he was being robbed. A man, believing him to be a burglar, rushed to his assistance and fought the officers until the woman interceded. Then he assisted the officers in binding and handcuffing the two men.

While the officers held him securely a negro woman searched him but no other weapon was found. Rudolph continued to bite and kick, inflicting a bad wound on Dougherty's neck.

There was no doubt that this man is William Rudolph, alias "the Missouri Kid," nor is there any doubt about the identity of his companion, "Black Frank," alias "Fred Lewis," said Superintendent Dougherty. "Both men have operated in Texas, Wisconsin and the extreme South."

Detailing the story of the hunt for the man, Superintendent said:

"The man first went to Hartford, who worked with the Hartford police, tried hard to locate Collins, but was unable to do so. Then he saw a second man. He was unable to locate the man, but it was not until Patrolman Harris received a wire from W. C. Collins, an unknown man, who was carrying two deadly weapons that Collins was discovered."

"The men reached Hartford Jan. 30, which shows us that they traveled continuously for the time from the 1st to the 30th. We could have arrested one of the men on Asylum street Saturday, but as we were anxious to get both of them and the man was not in the city at the time, we let him go.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Harrison B. Freeman has arranged to hold the men until proper papers are received for their extradition. The men wanted for robbery and murder are also wanted for the murder of Schumacher. The dead detective's brother was a fellow-worker with his brother in the police force, and in consequence the officers take the greatest satisfaction in the capture.

"They never killed a man in my life," said Dougherty. "They could have done so rather than lose that man."

SHERIFF STARTS AFTER ROBBERS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

UNION, Mo., March 2.—Sheriff Thomas Burch and William M. Morrissey, a deputy, have gone to Jefferson City for requisition papers for Rudolph and Collins, the Union bank robbers.

"I am not surprised," said Rudolph's mother, when informed of her son's arrest. "I knew he could not keep out of the way."

"I have nothing to say about the robbery."

"Do I think my son ought to be hanged or killing Schumacher? That is a hard question for a mother to answer."

BIT OF PAPER SAVED FROM FLAME WAS NEMESIS OF UNION ROBBERS

Most Sleuth of Clews Enabled William A. Pinkerton to Prove His Assertion That the World Could Not Hide Rudolph and Lewis From Him.

"The earth is not big enough to hold Rudolph and Lewis. We shall get them dead or alive"—William Pinkerton to the Post-Dispatch January 26.

"The earth is not big enough to hold the murderer of Charles J. Schumacher," was the statement of William A. Pinkerton, head of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, during the pursuit of Bill Rudolph and Fred Lewis.

"If I live, I will get them," was an addition to this statement that indicated how determined the great criminal catcher was in the hunt.

Rudolph and Lewis are now in the hands of the officers of the law in Hartford, Conn., and will be brought to Missouri at once to answer to the crimes of murder and bank robbery.

The Bank of Union, Franklin County, was broken into on the night of December 28, 1902, by two men, one of whom stood outside and fired at persons who appeared on the streets with a rifle, while the other blew open the door and took $10,000.

At the time of the robbery, Rudolph and Lewis were in the hands of the police.

Elevated Railways and Property Values.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
We call the attention of the railroad committee of the City Council to the following in a meeting paper:

"Capt. W. R. Hodges, chairman of the railroad committee, submitted the report, set forth the committee's reason for recommending that the various elevated railroad bills be filed. He laid stress upon the fact that that body will not consider elevated railroad bills which provide for a terminus east of Seventeenth street."

"It is manifest that in order to accommodate the public during the rush hours morning and night, additional railway facilities must be brought to the business men said Capt. Hodges. Elevated roads have been used in several cities for a number of years and have accomplished much toward relieving the congestion of traffic in various sections of the city by permitting the erection of such structures in the downtown districts."

The value of valuable property in such localities object on the ground that the rental value of their buildings would be greatly decreased. This we believe to be true. The cause of this is the fact that Capt. Hodges and we further believe that the depreciation in the taxable value of property in the elevated roads would more than counterbalance any revenue which the city could reasonably exact for such franchises. Now

Mr. Hodges admits that the property east of Seventeenth street would decline in value more than the city would be reimbursed for the franchise.

Mr. Hodges what would become of the values along Laclede, Olive, Washington and other streets should such elevated roads pass through them. Through them, if Mr. Hodges and his committee choose to spare the property east of Seventeenth street, to the unsightly burden upon those west of Seventeenth street? The residence west of Seventeenth street is in the same proportion to values as any great business property on Broadway.

Let us analyze this matter and do not try to burden your member with the heavy load that you should equally bear. Factories Along River
by Water.

PITTSBURG. March 2.—The rivers are again rising within their banks and as the water is falling rapidly here the headwaters, the worst of the flood may be considered as over. At 10 o'clock this morning, the Allegheny marks showed 23 feet and receding at the rate of a half-foot an hour.

Only a half-dozen times in a century has the record of yesterday been beaten but, notwithstanding this and the fact that the river came within a few hours, the damage has been as great as in many previous floods when the water did not reach so high a stage.

We all voted for improvements and we are sure that when they will see that we are in this district they will see that we are in a good position. The men of the mills and factories fronting the two rivers have been compelled to close on account of the water getting into the fly pits and probable 40,000 men will be thrown out of employment for several days.

The flood is general throughout all western Pennsylvania, the streams everywhere overflowing banks and causing more or less damage to houses and farms that lay in their course.

With the falling water a mass of mud and debris is left floating on the land thoroughfares of the two cities.

Little pools of water are frozen over and the sidewalks are covered with sheets of ice.

The water in many of the cellars also froze during the night and the health authorities have issued an order forbidding swimming following in the wake of the flood.

As quickly as the waters recede, gangs of men will be put to work and the flooded district thoroughly cleaned.

ROSE MARION Analyzes Mrs. Claxton's Much Discussed "THE IDEAL WIFE"

She Moves to Amend by Substituting the Words "Ideal Woman".

BY ROSE MARION.
A woman preached the sermon at the Grand Avenue Baptist Church Sunday. She was not a member of the church and had no desire to be one. She was the wife of the pastor, Rev. Alvin W. Claxton, and because of her paper, "The Ideal Wife," read before the Mother's Conference, Thursday, published in the Post-Dispatch Thursday and discussed by thousands since that time, 1,000 persons crowded the church to hear her.

The pews were full, the chairs in the aisles were all occupied and the walls were filled with standing men and women when the little woman stood before her audience.

Just before she began, her husband came in prayer for a blessing on speaker and audience. He prayed that his wife's hearers might give attentive ears and careful, thoughtful minds, and that all might get the message that she was to give.

When the prayer was concluded he stood by her side and instantly seemed not to need his hand. In this place that had held all through the church, and yet was soft and womanly, she asked her husband to sing "Only Remembered." With hymn book in hand she sang with them through several verses.

Her manner was calm and earnest. Her small figure was erect and she gave no sign of embarrassment. Every woman in the audience and most of the men made an effort to see her well. They saw a slight woman with a serious face, her hair waved away from her brow and brightened by a smile.

As she spoke she seemed to have it in her work to compete with men in like conditions and mental endowments. We were made to differ from women who are not equal to us, but we like them. Our lives should not discriminate theirs, but should reach beyond them and broaden their horizons.

Suitors See Girls
Only at Their Best.

"A strong, whole-hearted Christian woman is a power if she remains in her own sphere."

It is the custom of young ladies to look at their pretties in the parlor when they are to receive those they love. He rarely sees a woman who is not equal to him in her husband's eyes.

The woman who loves him is a power if she remains in her own sphere.

She stopped and asked, "Am I heard in the back part of the room?" from many voices. "Certainly," she said. "Yes, ma'am." She went on as evenly as before, her voice not loud, but easy to hear. The audience was in awe of what that seemed much to her, especially on the subject of woman's duty to her husband, she dwelt upon them carefully.

When Mrs. Claxton had reached this far she stopped and asked, "Am I heard in the back part of the room?" from many voices. "Certainly," she said. "Yes, ma'am." She went on as evenly as before, her voice not loud, but easy to hear. The audience was in awe of what that seemed much to her, especially on the subject of woman's duty to her husband, she dwelt upon them carefully.

She spoke to women as if she loved her and as if she were anxious for that sex to be in the same position in the world.

She stopped and asked, "Am I heard in the back part of the room?" from many voices. "Certainly," she said. "Yes, ma'am." She talked of the unselfishness of women and the importance of their home life.

She seemed to be a woman that would do anything that she believed in the line of duty, even if the doing of it made her suffer.

She drank a glass of water before she began, and smiled sweetly at her husband.

Fictitious Sunshine.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I fully agree with the minister's wife, Mrs. Claxton. I have a son, an exemplary young man of no bad habits whatever, and it is impossible for him to get a situation of any kind, for the simple reason that some young lady has his place. I say that fair work is for men, women should not be soldering the pens and doing other dirty work.

JIM JEFFRIES AGREES NOT TO KILL CORBETT

New York Conference a Peace Fest at Which Date for Hostilities Was Practically Settled.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Grim visaged war has smoother his wrinkled front.

As a result of the smoothing process, heavyweight champion Jim Jeffries and ex-champion Jim Corbett amicably agreed to a twenty-round fight next July before the clubs that will split them $25,000, or the largest purse that may be offered above that sum, the winner will take 75 per cent of the purse, the loser 25.

But, oh, what a fall there was for the hopes of those who expected at the meeting of these eminent pugilists, a whirl of battle, murder and sudden death.

For days one could not walk Broadway without hearing his name out of the mouths and threats that Jim and Jim were shooting at each other. Taunts were hurling to and fro like shells from six-inch guns. "Liar," "Fake," "Cur," "Coward," and "I'll knock his block off" were the mildest down used. Yet when the human destroyers actually met, they were soft and gentle as two mild merchants trading lambs wool for swallows.

What calm chilled their fury? What spell stilled those angry passions? What magic held back those fierce fists, what art of the mind held back the shouting off blouses? Why the charm, that spells the magics of gate money?

It was with nervous hands that the Delavan house proprietor grasped first a hot alarm and then an alarm bell to get the blood-thirsty fighters to gather. In this position he stood ready to do his duty.

He was surrounded by a dozen minor ones arrived.

But hark, whose is this eager and rapid step? Who is it that has approached? It is the tread of Jim Corbett. These are the steps of the champion.

"I shall be more careful this time. Jeff won't be able to get at me. I expect to be champion again."

THE FIGHTERS' STATEMENTS.

NEW YORK, March 2.—To a Post-Dispatch correspondent James J. Jeffries and James Corbett made the following statements concerning their coming match:

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.

"I've put on muscle especially to do Jeff. I expect to be champion again.

"I said at our conference that I thought I'd have a chance with Jeff. I say it again, and it will be a big chance. Anyone who saw me outpunch him at Coney Island for 22 rounds will tell you this is so.

"For three months I've been getting ready. I'm not much and I'm bigger and stronger than ever.

"I've been putting on muscle to do Jeff. I believe I can beat him.

"All I want is to fight; I'll put him away as I did before.

"I am glad Corbett showed so much respect and that he came to the meeting ready. All I want is to fight and show him what a mistake he made in following and bothering me for a fight. I'll put him away as I did before.

"I never said I'd kill Corbett in the ring. That report is a lie. I fight to win, that's all.

"All I want is to fight; I'll put him away as I did before.

"I am glad Corbett showed so much respect and that he came to the meeting ready. All I want is to fight and show him what a mistake he made in following and bothering me for a fight. I'll put him away as I did before.

"I never said I'd kill Corbett in the ring. That report is a lie. I fight to win, that's all.

"I was healthier and stronger than I am this minute. I don't dissipate. I'm in good condition."

POLICE QUESTION MRS. BURDICK

She and Her Mother Examined—Society Ooterie Involved in Mystery.

FIND THE WOMAN ADMITTED BY BURDICK'

Officers Now Declare That He Let a Feminine Friend Into His House and That Killing Was Well Planned.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, March 2.—"Find the woman" is the task put up to the district attorney and the police, who are trying to discover the murder of Edwin L. Burdick. They are satisfied now that a woman was admitted by him into his home last Thursday night. Who the woman was, has been unascertained, but the fact is known.

Mrs. Burdick, wife of E. L. Burdick, who was murdered at his home here last Thursday night, and Mrs. Hull, her mother, were examined at considerable length early today at a police station, where they were taken upon their return from Canastota, where they had attended the funeral of the murdered man.

Mrs. Hull was first questioned by District Attorney Caworth and Assistant Superintendent of Detectives Cusack. She said she knew nothing of whom Burdick admitted into his home.

She heard no sounds in the night, heard nothing of any voice whatever and awoke in the morning ignorant of any tragedy in the house. She denied positively that her relations with Mr. Burdick were unfriendly, and emphatically declared she believed no one in the household had anything to do with the crime or knew it until morning. Mrs. Burdick was next questioned at length as to what she could offer to throw light on the possible identity of the murderer, after which both women went back to the Ashland Avenue home.

She had one. Who Had Motive.

The district attorney said after they had gone: "We examined Mrs. Hull and Mrs. Burdick for the purpose of completing the examination of all those present in the house on the night the murder occurred and to ascertain from Mrs. Burdick if possible who, in her judgment, might have been actuated to commit such a crime.

Mr. Cusack says he is still of the opinion that the murderer is a woman.

The solution of the mystery means that the lid will be raised from a veritable Pandora's box of scandal among a set of young married people, all prominent in business and society. The persons who could aid the police most in their investigations are the ones who would be most anxious about the secret.

The field of police investigation is limited, apparently, to a small coterie of outwardly respectable men and women, and these volunteer nothing, have no theories to suggest, no aid to give and as little to say in answer to officials' interrogations as possible.

With this class of person to deal with, the police are deprived at the outset of one of their strongest cards—the "third degree." They cannot hope to know whether a society woman or a well-known business woman is an adherent of guilty knowledge or a confession. They dare not put pressure on this sort into the "sweat box." They must handle them with gloves in the absence of anything in the way of a clew more definite than they have now.

Murderer Was Shrewd Calculator.

The conclusion the police have arrived at is that the killer was shrewd and calculating, person of unusual nerve and intelligence that he or she had cause to hate Burdick bitterly, and that it was for no fancied wrong that the plan to murder him was laid and boldly carried out.

The finding of the steel-tipped golf stick with which it was almost certain Burdick was killed, and the fact that the bone in Burdick's skull was found by the medical examiner to be remodeled, indicates that the murderer must have struck the crushing blows upon Burdick's head could have been delivered by a woman.

Burdick was deeply in love with his friends as a man fond of women and society, but in a purely social way. He liked such mild amusements as cards, billiards, etc., at the Universal Church, where he was a pew holder and the like. He belonged to no clubs which did not have both sexes.

Neither Drunkard

Nor Gambler.

He did not like to drink. He was too methodical and too much of a business man to gamble. He yawned when he was up late. He was mixed up in intrigues with women no one knew of them, but Burdick and the woman themselves.

When the first news of Burdick's death was telephoned to his office a messenger went into the private office of Charles L. Park, his business partner and editor of the Roller Mill, with the single word that Burdick had been found dead. "Suldie," groaned Mr. Park. "He was being feared for a long time."

With the facts before them concerning what manner of man Burdick was and what his life had been, the police are at a loss to reconcile the apparently indisputable evidence left after the tragedy that Burdick kept an engagement with a woman, and the fact that his wife, his children, his mother-in-law and two maids were asleep upstairs.

At 10:30 o'clock on the street near the Burdick house at 10:30 o'clock the night of the murder, part of a night lunch was found in the man's den. All else is mystery.

BURDICK WAS WIFE'S FRIEND.

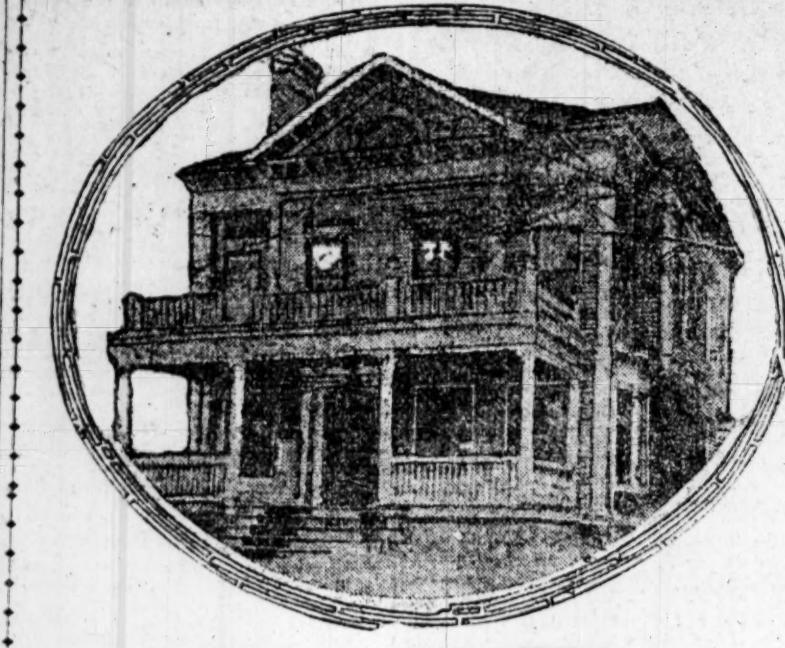

Former Husband of Mrs. Warren Discusses Buffalo Tragedy and Victims.

J. B. Warren, divorced husband of Mrs. Warren, mentioned in connection with the Edward L. Burdick tragedy at Buffalo, is "the Planter."

"Burdick was a friend of Mrs. Warren. I met his parents during our residence in Buffalo," he said. "But so far as Mrs. Warren sending him a paper containing account of our divorce, I am sure that it would have no object in doing this in the newspaper."

On the night of the tragedy Mr. Warren was in St. Paul, Minn.

MURDERED MILLIONAIRE AND SCENE OF CRIME

MR. BURDICK'S HOME IN BUFFALO.

ELEMENTS OF THE MYSTERY SURROUNDING BURDICK MURDER

Mrs. Burdick's body was found in a room he called his den, clad only in undershirt.

His assailant had covered his body with a rug and some pillows.

Mr. Burdick's skull was battered in with a blunt instrument, probably a golf club.

Two of the dead man's fingers were broken and the theory is that they were disintended while he was trying to ward off the blows that fell upon his head.

A big scar on his knee is taken to indicate that he had a struggle with his murderer.

There were five other persons in the house, none of them heard any noise.

The back door and the window of the kitchen were open.

The police maintain that Mr. Burdick was not the victim of burglars, as not a thing was taken from the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Burdick are reported to have had domestic trouble and the statement is made that both were seeking a divorce. They have three daughters.

Mr. Burdick is in Atlantic City and it is said when she left home, about a month ago, she had no intention of returning.

The statement is made that Mr. Burdick, in his action for a divorce, named as co-respondent a man well known in legal circles in Buffalo.

SUNDAY OPENINGS AT THE LOCAL THEATERS

"Sally in Our Alley," Shown at the Olympic, Is Greatly Out of Place

"Sally in Our Alley," shown at the Olympic Theater last night for the first time in St. Louis, is one of those New York made-to-order affairs, which is written by a maid and can be torn off at any time and piece.

The chief fault found with it by last night's audience was that it was not torn off shorter and quicker.

Broken up into what the piece would make up by turns for vaudeville and burlesque houses. That's where the thing's probably belongs, and at the prices which prevail at such houses.
